

VISION, MISSION & VALUES

Vision

Students who participate in Purple Carrots Drama Studio go out into the world with more confidence in themselves and an ability to make and keep meaningful friendships. They contribute to the creation of a world that recognises strength in diversity.

Mission

To provide an accepting and inclusive space where students can explore their creativity, self expression and social interactions through the arts. We empower our students by helping them recognise and develop their individual strengths, and by valuing their unique talents. Our students develop self awareness and social skills that will enhance the quality of the rest of their lives.

Values

The Arts: We believe in using the arts to transform and empower individuals in ways that improve their relationship to self, others and the world.

Play: We see the ability to play as a personal resource for our students, and aim to support them in developing this skill through our curriculum and communication style.

Fun & Joy: We believe in teaching through positive reinforcement so that students are able to acknowledge their own strengths and enjoy socialising with others.

An organic approach to teaching: We meet students where they are at, and respond to the challenges and strengths that naturally arise during class.

Compassion: We spread loving kindness through encouraging compassion for self and others.

Respect: We respect ourselves and each other by welcoming different learning styles and personalities as we aim to optimise the quality of experience for every student.

Inclusivity: We value and celebrate each others' differences.

Diversity: We believe in strength in diversity. We recognise that differences between people can be of mutual benefit to all.

Community: Our role in social development is to create space for inclusive experiential learning through the arts. We help our student's become citizens who make significant social contributions that matter to them and to their communities.

Communication: We practice open, honest, and transparent communication. We honour the role that good communication plays in building life-long professional relationships, personal friendships and communal trust.
